

CODE OF CONDUCT

April 2018

Innovative Vehicle Solutions

THIS IS OUR CODE OF CONDUCT.

Know it. Follow it. Protect it.

For it is designed to protect you, your colleagues and Haldex.

Ask us if you have questions. And above all, have the courage to speak up if you discover dangerous, illegal, or unethical behavior. Your manager, Human Resources and Haldex Group Management will always support you.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

A SHARED CODE OF CONDUCT FOR SHARED BUSINESS SUCCESS	5
Aiming for the highest standards	7
Who is this code for?	7
Additional responsibilities for managers	7
Where to turn for help	8
Haldex promises to support you	8
CUSTOMER FIRST: BUILDING TRUST WITH HIGH ETHICS	9
Staying current on all laws and regulations	9
International considerations	9
Trade embargoes	9
Avoiding fraud	10
Avoiding bribery and corruption	10
Gifts	10
Hospitality and hosting	10
Avoiding conflicts of interest	11
Working with relatives or friends	11
Developing relationships at work	11
Outside business or civic interests	11
Speaking engagements	11
Political involvement	11
Adhering to laws regulating competition/antitrust	12
Selecting suppliers, contractors, and other business partners	12
Safeguarding confidential business information	12
Handling requests for information from media, investors, etc.	12
Keeping accurate accounting records	12
Expense reporting and documentation	12
RESPECT FOR THE INDIVIDUAL: VALUING HUMAN RIGHTS	14
Creating and supporting a fair workplace	14
Equal opportunity	14
Zero-tolerance for harassment	14
Respecting employees' personal privacy and information	15
Company information systems, computers and other devices	15
Social media	15
Child and youth labor	16
PASSION FOR EXCELLENCE: SUCCESS IS OUR RESPONSIBILITY	17
Safety #1 priority	17
Drugs and substance abuse	17
Anti-violence initiatives	18
Environmental responsibility	18

AIMING FOR THE HIGHEST STANDARDS

Following the letter of the law is important. It is, of course, fundamental to ethical work. Yet, we look beyond ... to the spirit of the law. To what's truly best, not only for ourselves, but for the world around us. Because we know that as a global company, we can't help but have an impact. That's why we aim to follow the highest standards - in everything we do, everything we say, everywhere we work, every day.

That is why we have built our Ethical Code of Conduct (aka Code) upon globally acknowledged principles for human rights, fair labor practices and environmental responsibility as set forth in the UN Declaration of Human Rights, UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises, UN Global Compact, applicable ILO conventions, as well as national legislation.

No Code can cover every possible situation. Yet it should always be your foundation. Let these principles, along with knowledge, awareness, and integrity, guide you. And when you are in doubt, always ask. (See: Where to turn for help).

WHO IS THIS CODE FOR?

The quick answer is, EVERYONE.

To be more specific: every employee or representative of Haldex and its subsidiaries, including members of the Board of Directors, must know and follow this Code. This also extends to our contractors, suppliers, consultants and their employees, as we aim only to partner with others who also strive to follow the highest standards. By accepting and/or continuing in a position at Haldex, whether full time, part time, temporary, or otherwise, you are obliged to follow this Ethical Code of Conduct. It is designed to safeguard you, your colleagues, our company and our customers, which is why we put such importance on everyone following it. Haldex will take decisive action if we find that the Code was not followed, including dismissal or contract termination. If severe and/or in violation of laws and regulations, noncompliance or misconduct may also lead to criminal charges.

Did you make the right decision?
Check the Code!

Additional responsibilities for managers

Those of you in leadership positions within Haldex have the important responsibility of also leading others in ethical behavior. This, of course, starts with you. Showing the right behavior is always more effective than telling.

Beyond being a good role model, it's important that you also:

- Ensure all your team members have read and understood our Code
- Ensure all your team members are up-to-date on current laws and regulations that apply to their jobs
- Develop a positive work environment for your team that encourages accountability in ethical behavior
- Promptly and professionally answer questions or concerns about matters related to our Code, as well as reports of misconduct
- Support your team in making good decisions by never allowing retaliation for speaking up in matters of ethics and our Code

WHERE TO TURN FOR HELP

Just as we all share responsibility to follow our Code, we also share responsibility to hold each other accountable. Immediately report any breach or suspected potential breach of our Code or laws/regulations. Quick action could prevent a harmful situation, or prevent an already dangerous situation from becoming worse. If you are unsure, seek advice or support as soon as you can from your immediate manager. If he/she is unavailable or you are uncomfortable talking to your manager, you may contact any of the following for help:

- Your local Human Resource manager
- The SVP Human Resources
- Anyone in the Haldex Group Management
- Another Haldex manager

Haldex promises to support you

At Haldex, having the courage to do the right thing should always be met with respect and support. Just as we expect our employees to take our Ethical Code of Conduct seriously, we promise to take your concerns and reports seriously, following up on each one in a timely and complete way, without bias.

Haldex does not tolerate retaliation against anyone attempting to follow our Code.

Whether passively ignoring or actively preventing someone from raising a concern, including unfair treatment or even dismissal, retaliation has no place at Haldex. If you suspect retaliation - against you or anyone else at Haldex - report it just as you would any other breach of our Code.

CUSTOMER FIRST: BUILDING TRUST WITH HIGH ETHICS

Our business partners have the right to expect honesty and responsibility from us in all our business interactions. We cannot put our customers' or our own long-term success at risk for short-term gains that are unfairly or unlawfully gotten. Truth and transparency must be our foundation.

STAYING CURRENT ON ALL LAWS AND REGULATIONS

Know the law. And follow it.

Haldex as a company is, of course, required to follow all laws and regulations that apply to our business. And that hinges on each of us as individuals knowing and following them. Large, respected companies have collapsed because of the misdeeds or unethical actions of just one or a few individuals.

You are responsible for keeping yourself up-to-date about the applicable laws, regulations and guidelines for your job and our business in general. Haldex will assist you as much as possible in this with job training, updated policies and handbooks, presentations, etc. If you encounter a situation not addressed in this Ethical Code of Conduct or our other policies/procedures, or for which these differ from the law, always follow the law.

International considerations

As a global company, we must stay up-to-date on international laws and regional laws for those areas in which we operate. If laws or regulations in your region could affect our operations in another region, be sure to promptly contact your appropriate colleagues in that region, as well as Haldex Group Management as appropriate.

Trade embargoes

Since our physical goods as well as our services, technologies, and other intellectual property often cross borders, it is vital that we comply with import/export and trade compliance laws. This includes international transport during all stages of production, not just final sales deliveries - for example, R&D and manufacturing. Everyone acting on behalf of Haldex must be aware of the applicable laws governing embargoes, customs, trade sanctions, etc.

In addition, all employees must be familiar with basic best practices to ensure that we are compliant. Always crosscheck all products and equipment against export control and restriction lists - acquiring necessary export licenses, and ensuring goods are not supplied within countries with stricter embargoes. Consistently check transactions and conduct regular audits. Include controls within our contracts detailing sanctions exclusions and warranties.

AVOIDING FRAUD

Simply put, fraud involves deceiving others for unlawful gain. There is no need to explain how devastating it would be for our company and, by extension, for each of our own jobs, security and reputations, if any of our employees, officers or representatives were involved in fraudulent activity. Such activity includes, but is not limited to, lying, forgery, misappropriating assets, embezzlement, unauthorized handling of transactions, and falsifying records or financial statements. Besides these direct actions, carelessness and waste also drain the company's profitability and fall under the definition of fraud.

If you discover or suspect fraudulent activity by anyone representing Haldex, you are required to report it immediately (See: Where to turn for help) and (See "Avoiding bribery and corruption" and "Avoiding conflicts of interest" for more information related to fraudulent activities).

AVOIDING BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION

Gifts and hospitality do have constructive and positive roles to play in fostering good business relationships. Yet improperly handled, they can lead to accusations of bribery or corruption. With knowledge and transparency in all our actions, we can avoid even a hint of such activities.

No one at Haldex may either directly or indirectly offer or authorize payment to influence or otherwise affect the impartiality of a second or third party in regards to Haldex. Such payments include, but are not limited to, gifts and hospitality/hosting. Likewise, no one at Haldex may demand or accept such a payment from a second or third party.

All gifts, hospitality or other payments must have a valid business purpose and not be lavish or extravagant. You are responsible for knowing what the limits are for your region and/or specific situation. If you are uncertain about giving or receiving a gift or other benefit, whether internally at Haldex or involving a second or third party, contact your manager.

If you are in doubt,
always ask!

Gifts

Legitimate gifts (whether cash, items, services, credits, discounts, or other) always have a valid business reason and are of nominal value and infrequent. To ensure correct handling of gifts, obtain prior approval from your manager before offering or accepting them. Promotional gifts must be imprinted with our logotype and pre-approved for general distribution.

Hospitality and hosting

There are circumstances in which hospitality and "hosting" (paying/reimbursing a second or third party for travel, accommodation, entertainment, etc.) can be legitimately offered or accepted as part of a business meeting, demonstration, marketing, or other activity for Haldex. However, there are strict regulations governing this, which vary according to the location and/or situation.

Be sure to familiarize yourself with the applicable rules and obtain pre-approval from your manager before making or accepting such offers.

AVOIDING CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

All of us must act with impartiality and transparency in our work for Haldex. No Haldex employee should give or appear to give improper advantages to any individual, entity or organization on behalf of Haldex. In addition, employees may not use their positions at Haldex for inappropriate personal gain either for themselves or for family members, friends or other associates. If a personal financial interest could call into question your impartiality or integrity, immediately disclose the situation to your manager.

Although we respect individual privacy, we must step in to address conflicts of interest wherever they may occur, as even the appearance or accusation of such a conflict could negatively affect the company as well as the employee.

CUSTOMER FIRST
We understand our customers' demands and live by our principles. We base our decisions on our customers' goals: We succeed when our customers excel.

Working with relatives or friends

Situations that may connect you in your role for Haldex with relatives or friends in a business capacity require special care. The best practice is to avoid such situations altogether - to protect you, them and the company - as these are common causes of conflicts of interest. This may include them entering into business deals with you or someone who reports to you, providing an indirect service within your scope of responsibility, or applying for a job for which you are the hiring manager.

Talk to your manager and your local Human Resource manager immediately when you become aware of such a situation. With your cooperation, we can quickly find the appropriate solution to prevent or resolve any conflict of interest.

Developing relationships at work

Forming relationships at work is natural. However, romantic relationships between coworkers carry a high risk for conflict of interest - in particular, cases involving managers and team members or others with intersecting responsibilities within the company. Be open and honest in disclosing such relationships to your manager or your local Human Resource manager so that we may make accommodations to avoid conflicts of interest, which is in the best interest of you, your coworker and the company.

Outside business or civic interests

Although we are committed to giving our employees privacy in choosing and engaging in personal, social or civic activities outside of work, if any of these activities interfere with an employee's work for Haldex, it can possibly create a conflict of interest. Always discuss with and get approval from your manager before accepting or starting any employment or activities outside of Haldex, whether paid or not, that could negatively impact your ability to deliver on your obligations to Haldex.

Speaking engagements

Always discuss with and get approval from your manager and/or Haldex Group Management before accepting, giving or participating in external speaking engagements, lectures, interviews, expert panels, or teaching opportunities on any topic related to your work or any of Haldex's businesses, products, operations, etc.

Political involvement

In general, Haldex maintains neutrality in political issues. However we will, of course, seek to protect our rights as a company. If we do disagree with any laws, regulations, rulings, or political positioning as they apply to our business, operations, vision and/or purpose, we will take any and all actions legally available to us to advance our position, acting with integrity in this as in all things. As this is a highly sensitive area with strict regulations, only approved people at Haldex or acting on behalf of Haldex should be involved in such situations.

On an individual basis, Haldex employees are welcome to take part in the political process according to the rights given to them by their country of citizenship and/or residence. However, this is a personal choice not to be affiliated with Haldex. In other words, Haldex's name, brand and resources must not be used to promote personal political agendas or beliefs.

ADHERING TO LAWS REGULATING COMPETITION/ ANTITRUST

Competition/antitrust laws are designed to protect fair business by limiting or prohibiting anti-competitive actions. This includes everything from price fixing and bid rigging to restricting supply, abusing a dominant position, or sharing sensitive market information.

Regulating this type of behavior, of course, benefits all business, and Haldex supports and follows such laws in all regions where we operate. It is important that you understand what constitutes anti-competitive actions as it relates to your position and Haldex in general. If you are uncertain, talk to your manager.

Selecting suppliers, contractors, and other business partners

Excellent business partnerships are part of what makes our company so successful. It's vital that we choose wisely from the start, selecting those partners who believe as we do and strive for high business ethics. Our selection process is thorough, unbiased, and transparent. This ensures the best possible outcome for all parties, and also ensures there is not even an appearance of conflicts of interest, bribery, or other unlawful conduct.

We reserve the right to refuse or end business relationships with partners that do not go through Haldex's open selection channels, breach any part of their business contract, and/or do not abide by the standards outlined in this Ethical Code of Conduct.

If you discover or suspect that this is not followed, you are required to report it immediately (See: Where to turn for help).

Always protect confidential information!

SAFEGUARDING CONFIDENTIAL BUSINESS INFORMATION

All of us at Haldex are entrusted with protecting our company, including the confidential information essential to our business success. This also includes confidential information entrusted to us by our customers about their businesses, operations, future planning, etc.

You are required to take all reasonable measures to protect confidential information. Other than for legitimate business reasons, you must not, either willfully or through carelessness, disclose any of Haldex's confidential information or that of our customers to third parties (including friends and family members).

Handling requests for information from media, investors, etc.

Haldex receives many requests for information from the media, investors, analysts, shareholders, and the general public. We must ensure that any communication we have is appropriate, clear, professional, and timely. There are strict regulations regarding communication, such as selective disclosure of non-public information, and it is vital to follow them to avoid making Haldex and/or yourself liable to prosecution. Therefore, we have designated specific departments and individuals within Haldex that are knowledgeable about the legal issues or communication.

Questions and information requests typically reach our PR, investor relations, and other authorized communication departments first. However, at times, journalists or other individuals may directly contact other Haldex departments or employees. If you receive such a request for information, do not comment. Instead, politely refer the individual to our SVP Communications or your manager.

Every employee has a responsibility!

KEEPING ACCURATE ACCOUNTING RECORDS

All Haldex accounting information must be recorded and filed in accordance with applicable laws, regulations and generally accepted accounting principles, including the International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS). The financial reporting shall also be in accordance the approved guidelines and accounting policies of Haldex. It is essential to assure that the financial reporting gives a true, fair and complete presentation of the financial accounts and the financial position. It is also essential to make sure the communication due to financial reporting is open, clear and timely.

Expense reporting and documentation

To ensure accurate company records, every employee must submit and document his or her business expenses in accordance with Haldex policies and procedures. It is vital that your expense reports are always on time, complete and correct and that any expense you claim is legitimately business related. Relevant documentation is important, as you and/or Haldex may need to prove the validity of expenses.

RESPECT FOR THE INDIVIDUAL: VALUING HUMAN RIGHTS

We believe that all people across the globe share basic, unquestionable rights. In all our business endeavors, we strive to uphold these, as set forth in the UN's Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

CREATING AND SUPPORTING A FAIR WORKPLACE

To become a strong global team, we must support and strengthen each individual. Haldex is committed to protecting our employees and encouraging high performance, upholding all relevant laws and regulations to do so. We cooperate internally, as well as with trade unions and other organizations that represent our team members, with the aim of ensuring that each employee feels listened to, cared for and respected.

Equal opportunity

At Haldex, we see value in differences. Diversity makes us stronger. Everyone - regardless of gender, race, religion, age, sexual orientation, marital status, or disability - has something valuable to offer. And we believe all people should have equal opportunity to do so. Therefore, we hire employees based on merit, without prejudice. Haldex does not tolerate discrimination - whether in recruitment, hiring, compensation, benefits, training, promotion, or any other form - based on any characteristic or situation protected by law.

Zero-tolerance for harassment

A company of integrity values the dignity of all people. At Haldex, we treat each other with respect. We will not tolerate any form of abuse or harassment of or by employees, contractors, suppliers, customers or anyone else we interact with. This includes both physical actions as well as abusive or inappropriate language.

However, using frank and sincere language during performance conversations and reviews to discuss valid areas for performance improvement are not considered harassment.

RESPECTING EMPLOYEES' PERSONAL PRIVACY AND INFORMATION

We are committed to respecting people's privacy and the confidentiality of personal information. Haldex does need to keep certain personal information for employees on record to provide benefits, ensure proper business operations, and/or comply with applicable laws. We will not seek out or keep any personal information other than what is necessary for these reasons. Haldex takes all required measures to ensure this information is kept safe and confidential, being visible and usable only to authorized individuals. As part of these security measures, you are responsible for protecting and keeping confidential any personal employee information you have access to in your role at Haldex.

Unless it interferes with an employee's work for Haldex or threatens Haldex's reputation, we make no judgment and take no action with respect to an employee's personal activities, interests, associations, etc.

Company information systems, computers and other devices

In the course of your duties for Haldex, you may be granted access to the company's digital information systems. It is important to note that all documents, data, and other content created and/or stored in these systems is Haldex property, with full rights. This content is viewable by Haldex employees, managers, officers, consultants, and auditors with appropriate authority. This also includes information created or stored on company-issued computers, mobile phones, tablets, and other devices.

Access to Haldex's computer systems and devices is granted to employees for legitimate business purposes only. Use of social media for approved Haldex business purposes is allowed, although it's important to note that time spent on this should be used wisely in order to fulfill your complete responsibilities at Haldex with excellence. (See "Social media" for more information).

RESPECT FOR THE INDIVIDUAL

We recognize the importance of our people. Our success depends on responsible individuals working together effectively. We promote this value by showing one another respect through open communication and encouragement of initiative, cooperation, support, professional growth and advancement through performance-based compensation and active responsibility.

Social media

As more and more brand interaction happens within social media, it's vital that we all be good ambassadors of our company image. Digital and online information - from articles, opinions, and comments to photos and videos - should always be considered public, even if intended as private messages, particularly in social media. As such, we expect all employees to take care not to post anything inappropriate or harmful to Haldex, our employees, or our customers. This applies both to job-related social media activity on behalf of Haldex and also personal social media activity when mentioning Haldex.

Never mention or in any way disclose confidential company information. Additional prohibited social media conduct includes, but is not limited to, posting, commenting on, sharing, or otherwise condoning defamatory, pornographic, proprietary, harassing, or libelous content.

Haldex constantly monitors our company image on social media, with automatic searches in place to catch mentions. We also rely on our employees to safeguard our brand. If you come across any content online that could be harmful for Haldex, report it to your manager immediately. If you work with social media on behalf of Haldex and find yourself in a situation that is or could become hostile or lead to a breach of our Ethical Code of Conduct, remove yourself as politely and quickly as possible and contact your manager.

We have a responsibility to protect children from harm!

CHILD AND YOUTH LABOR

Children - all children - deserve care and support. Haldex stands by the principles in the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, that we as global citizens must protect children from economic exploitation, from dangerous work, and from all harm to their health, development or education. The UN has tasked governments with setting a minimum age for employment, local rules will apply, and for ensuring the above principles are applied to all children. Our company pledges to abide by the UN's standards and all laws and regulations governing employment of young people. We expect all our business partners to abide by this as well, and will take necessary measures to ensure so, or otherwise end the business relationship.

If doubts arise about the age of a Haldex employee or anyone working for our business partners, or about the conditions in which any legally employed youth works, contact your manager immediately.

PASSION FOR EXCELLENCE: SUCCESS IS OUR RESPONSIBILITY

Our passion for excellence flows through everything we do at Haldex. It has to. Because total commitment is the only way we can ensure success for ourselves, for our customers and for our partners. Our focus on excellence, of course, centers on producing quality products and services. Yet, it also includes protecting people’s health, safety, security and the environment, which includes reducing harmful emissions as well as risk of accidents, and ensuring efficient use of energy and natural resources.

SAFETY #1 PRIORITY

We all need to be alert to safety risks as we go about our jobs. No matter what the deadline or pressure to perform, if you can’t do it safely, don’t do it. We simply cannot risk accidents that could hurt people or our surroundings - including the global environment.

Every employee is expected to promote a safe workplace, react and address any safety concerns that might occur. Regardless of the situation and who it concerns, always speak up and advocate for a safe environment, to ensure your own and your colleagues safety.

We also expect all managers to be role models for safety, as well as ensure that each employee understands and follows the overall safety and health policies and procedures for Haldex as well as those related to his or her job function. Always acknowledge safety concerns regardless of its origin and treat the source with respect.

Drugs and substance abuse

Excellence and substance abuse do not mix. For the safety of all our employees and to guarantee our products and services are of the highest quality, Haldex is committed to a “clean” workplace. We have zero tolerance for drug or sub-

I follow the safety rules because I want to, not because I have to!

stance abuse. No employees may use or abuse drugs and/or other substances that could impair their motor skills, good judgment, or any other functions necessary to perform their work with excellence or that might compromise safety. This applies to both legal and illegal substances. If you need to take a medicine prescribed by your healthcare provider that might cause drowsiness or other impairments, talk to your manager immediately.

PASSION FOR EXCELLENCE

We are committed to continuous improvement. We strive for excellence in serving our customers, empowering our employees and rewarding our investors. We are constantly striving to improve performance and achieve superior results through consistent business processes.

Anti-violence initiatives

Haldex has measures in place to help protect personnel, property and equipment at all of our locations. Yet, we all share responsibility for our company's and our coworkers' security, starting with our own attitudes and actions. Violence, threats and intimidation have no place at Haldex. We will take swift action in any and all such cases, involving legal action against the offender(s) as necessary.

ENVIRONMENTAL RESPONSIBILITY

We believe every person on this earth has a responsibility towards it. That's why all of us at Haldex must work to ensure our impact on the world around us - the world we all live in - is positive. Today and tomorrow. Whenever there is a viable alternative, we must avoid materials and methods that cause harm or risk of harm to the environment. We rely on our employees to actively look for ways to make processes and products more environmentally responsible - from simple daily tasks to large-scale production processes or product development. Wherever you see opportunities to reduce energy consumption, use raw materials more efficiently or otherwise be environmentally smarter, talk to your manager.

Innovative Vehicle Solutions